5:25 PM CJzech Task creation will be done by the Lore Leadership. As items are identified a forum post will be created. A volunteer from the community will be given ownership of the task.

Task Owner Responsibility:

1. Drive the initial conversation for the task.
2. Create lore-topics for more in depth conversation if needed.
3. Develop the task to the point it is ready for review.
4. Create the lore-review post for final review.

Lore Introduction

June 10, 2023

12:48 PM CJzech This is a summary for new lore contributors and also anyone who does not wish to delve into the depths of all the lore chats and forums.
Lore Navigators: @Grimm @CJzech @xDORX

Just get here or want to know what is cannon - lore-canon
Once ideas are determined to be accepted as lore a member of leadership will add a summary and any important details to a new forum post in lore-canon.
This will be our way of keeping track of what tasks are completed and reference material to make sure the story is cohesive.

Want to know what is actively being worked on - lore-tasks
Task will be updated as we determine if a new task is identified.

Working on a task and you think you are done - lore-review
As a task is completed, create a new post in lore-review. Here you can get final constructive feedback and update as needed. Leaders will review and once work appears to be completed. We will determine if a vote is needed or if we can just move it to cannon depending on its overall impact.

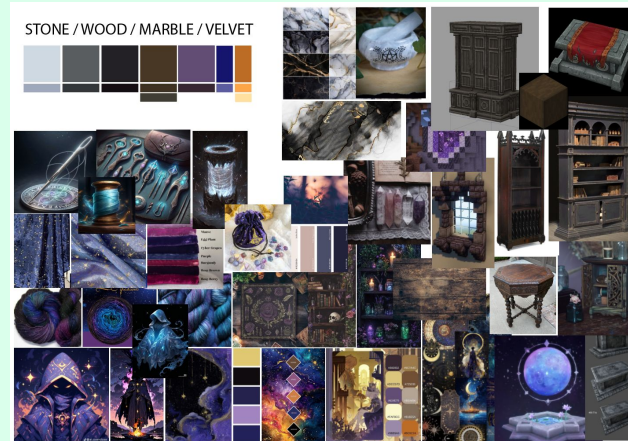

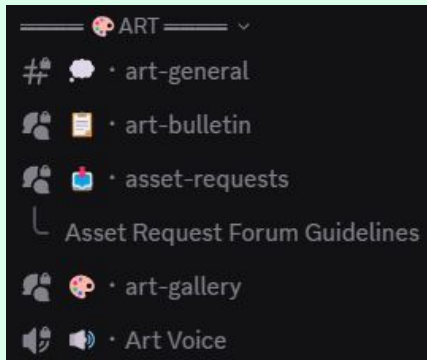

Need guidance, talk about a task or meeting notes - lore-topics
Any story/game lore discussions or notes for Lore specific meeting will be here.

General Lore discussion - # lore-general
It never hurts to ask for help. This is a team effort after all. edited

DEMOS!
